Introduction There are no specific regulatory barriers to participation in the WIC Program for individuals who are refugees.

Definition of refugee A refugee is an individual who has been forced to leave his or her country due to such reasons as war, political reasons, religious persecution, or natural disaster. Refugees fear returning to their country for fear of being harmed.

Residency In many instances, refugees may not have a permanent place to live and therefore may be considered homeless. The WIC food package may be tailored to accommodate the unique needs of homeless participants.
